A Huge List Of Accidents Reported

(By The United Press)
Reports to the United Press gave 75 persons dead in the United States, and more than 600 injured by Independence Day tragedies. Reports continue to pour in from most isolated districts, indicating the total dead might run well over a hundred.
Fifteen persons were killed in Fourth of July accidents in Ohio. Traffic smashups, the premature explosions of giant fire-crackers, exploding dynamite caps, revolver shots, and drownings were responsible for the huge death toll.
Scores were injured.

Many Ohioans Victims
COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—At least fifteen persons are known to have lost their lives in Fourth of July accidents in the state. Three of the deaths resulted from fire works, while the others lost their lives in automobile accidents.

More than a score were injured, according to reports.
Among those who succumbed were: Charles Connor, 25, Huntington, W. Va., almost instantly killed at Jackson when a huge fire cracker exploded prematurely.
John Brohan, 13, died in a Cleveland Hospital, the result of having been buried in a sand slide, caused by the explosion of a fire cracker, which had been buried in the sand.

Charles Corbinham, 18, was fatally burned at Dayton in an explosion caused when he threw a fire cracker into a metal drum which had contained denatured alcohol.

Dorothy Love, 17, Carl Bailett, 18, and Gretchen Ciphers, 17, all of Ashtabula, were killed when an automobile in which they were riding dashed over an embankment at Hayesville.

Heavy Toll In Pennsylvania
PITTSBURGH, PA., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Two deaths with a score injured, was the fire-cracker toll of the Independence Day celebration in the Pittsburgh district, while four others met death in automobile accidents incident to the day's observance, according to reports at the coroner's office today.

Alice Stoker, age 6, struck a match to a fire cracker, it exploded, setting fire to her dress. She died from burns. Anton Veltes, a glass worker, was shot and killed by his wife, Mrs. Frances Veltes, the police charge, who placed her under arrest. The woman claimed, according to the police, that the shot was fired in celebration of the Fourth and that her husband was accidentally shot.

In various Pittsburgh hospitals were a score or more of injured children, some of them maimed for life. ## Harmonious Program Is Sought

CHICAGO, July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—A national convention of the Federated Farmer-Labor party, representing industrial workers and farmers, will be held in December or next January for the purpose of nominating presidential and other candidates in the 1924 election, if the report of the organization committee is adopted by delegates representing these groups meeting here with the National Farmer-Labor convention.

The committee recommended that the letter of the party be the "federated farmer-labor party, organized to obtain political satisfaction for industrial workers and farmers through political unity."
Provision is made for the affiliation of all units not represented in the bodies.
Election of a national executive committee to in turn elect an executive council and extension of the program to state and local units, also are recommended by the committee. Any one over 16 years of age would be entitled to membership in the affiliated groups.

An immediate campaign is instructed to be launched in every community and special efforts made to obtain new affiliations.
CHICAGO, July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—A program of policies harmonious to the ideals of groups representing labor, economic, industrial and co-operative organizations, which may become the basis of a 1924 campaign platform endorsed by all minority political bodies, was expected to be presented today to the joint conference here of representatives of the groups and the farmer-labor national convention. Action by the conference will be submitted to the reconstituted farmer-labor convention in its separate session.

A committee of the conference, composed yesterday, is to be determined whether it is possible to harmonize the agricultural and labor groups of the country for united political action at the polls. William E. Rodriguez and John C. Kennedy, former Socialist members of the Chicago city council, were named president and secretary respectively of that committee yesterday.

Consideration also may be given today to an organization plan proposed by C. E. Ruthenberg, national secretary of the workers' party, for a "federated farmer-labor party," membership in which would include so-called radical organizations as well as conservative labor organizations and the farmers. W. Z. Foster, radical leader, is a member of the committee on organization. The convention yesterday adopted a declaration favoring Ruthenberg's plan. A charge that national officers of the large unions are lined up with the two old parties was made in a speech by Alexander Howat, deposed president of the Kansas mine workers.

Immigrants on the S. S. Guillo Cesare salute the Statue of Liberty as the vessel steamed into New York harbor. ## Three Drown In Ohio River

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Heroic efforts on the part of two boys to save their young girl companion from a strong undertow after their canoe capsized, while they were riding the waves from a river tug, failed and the three were drowned in the Ohio river near the outskirts of the city last night.

The dead are:
Miss Audrey Adams, 21.
Erwin Quinn, 17.
Erwin Juckendorn, 21, all of Louisville.

The two young men, both reputed to be expert swimmers, in efforts to save Miss Adams, were carried under after struggling for several minutes to reach the Kentucky shore. Eye witnesses say the boys went down with the girl in their clutches.

The three were members of a party of about 20 young people who had driven to a camp near the river for a holiday picnic.

DELAWARE, O., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The so-called "dungeon" at the Girls' Industrial School was the main point of testimony today at the hearing before the state civil service commission on the appeal of Mrs. Mae E. Stannard, former matron of the school, removed under charges of State Welfare Director John E. Harter.

Attorney Randolph W. Walton for Mrs. Stannard, brought out testimony from several of the witnesses who have been imprisoned in the "dungeon" regarding its condition. The "dungeon," the girls testified, was a room located in the basement of the assembly hall. Witnesses agreed that the chamber was a small one and had a concrete floor and that it was equipped with a mattress, but they differed as to the amount of light which was permitted to enter through a single window.

Mrs. Miriam Livingston, of Delaware, a parole officer at the institution, said that she "had seen a girl at the window of the 'dungeon' and that she was screaming. Mrs. Livingston said she attempted to 'quiet her' and that the window was boarded up to within two feet of the top.

R. B. Breeze, an employee of the institution, said he had taken meals, consisting of bread and water to girls imprisoned in the room and declared that the window was boarded up excepting for about six inches at the top.

Further reference was made in testimony today to the signing of charges made by employees of the institution against Mrs. Stannard.

Heads Press Association

CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—J. N. J., was chosen president of the National Anti-Trust Press Association at the closing session of its annual convention here last night. Boston was selected for next year's meeting place.

Other officers elected include: H. L. Lawson, Detroit, and William L. Borah, Akron, vice presidents; Miss Edna Hyde, of New York, secretary; Clyde G. Townsend, Pontiac, Michigan, official editor, and C. J. Kidney, Cleveland, treasurer.

Mrs. Adams is the third woman to be elected head of the organization in the forty-eight years of its existence.

country and when the correspondents started westward on the presidential train they were handed several printed speeches which were the work of several weeks. Mr. Harding sought advice and got a good deal of it, but the general strategy of his Western trip was his own.

What kind of an impression did the president make? The answer to this question would be of doubtful value even if every person in his audience could have been interviewed. Modern campaigning does not permit of oratorical appeal alone, because there is no particular spell about a speech that is read from a manuscript. Mr. Harding being a newspaper man realized that he would get better publicity by preparing his speeches in advance because in that way the newspapers generally would save telegraphic expense and be able to provide space to handle them at greater length. President Roosevelt was first to see the advantage of this and often got his speeches into the mails, subject to release as much as a month ahead of the speaking date. President Wilson disliked to prepare speeches in advance and even his addresses to congress were often held until the last minute for correction. Mr. Wilson used to say that he de-

Balloonist Forced To Jump; Huge Gas Bag Escapes

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Troy F. Donaldson and P. A. Erlich, both of Springfield, Ill., pilot and aid, respectively, in the "City of Springfield," an entry in the national balloon race which started from here yesterday, were injured slightly this morning when they were forced to jump from their craft eight miles northwest of Bryan, Ohio. The balloon escaped.

Mr. Donaldson telegraphed The Associated Press that he could not rip the panel out of the balloon to make a safe landing and both he and his aide determined to jump as the basket touched the ground. He added that the gigantic gas bag got away from them, along with their entire outfit, containing clothing, instruments and food. The landing was made at 6:12 o'clock this morning. Mr. Donaldson said.

The "City of Springfield" was the first of the thirteen balloons participating in the contest to report having landed. Several were seen early today drifting over Marion, Ohio, while a bag identified as that of Lieutenant S. Gimstead, of Washington, an army entry, passed over Custer, Ohio, at 5:30 today. A balloon piloted by Warren Raser, 64-year-old Brookville, Ohio, man, which came to earth early yesterday evening at Arcadia, Indiana, 25 miles from here, was not in the race. Raser officially withdrew from the contest because of a leaky bag, but decided to make a brief flight any way.

Torn fabric at the top of the bag necessitated W. T. Van Orman, Akron, O., and his aide, P. V. Thadon, Detroit, making a forced landing in the dark at 10 o'clock last night five miles north of Hartford City, Ind. Van Orman's balloon was the "City of Akron." He reported the landing was made as the last resource, all available equipment having been thrown away prior to that time. Van Orman's was the second to start in the race.

A weak place in the gas bag forced Ralph Upson, of Detroit, to come to earth near Wapakoneta, Ohio, at 2 o'clock this morning according to a message from the pilot. He was in the "Detroit" and was a favorite in the contest. Upson is a former winner of one international and two national balloon races.

Roy Donaldson's craft which escaped him when he and his aide jumped in making a forced landing near Bryan, Ohio, came to earth at Arcadia, Ohio, about eight miles west of Toledo, according to a report received here.

Backfire From Harding's Speech

President To Board Ship For Alaska Today

TACOMA, WASH., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—President and Mrs. Harding, arriving here shortly before 10 a. m. today, reached the end of the long trail over which they have traveled for fifteen days in fourteen states reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. After an address here the chief executive and his party, including three cabinet members, will board the United States naval transport Henderson and sail at 2:00 p. m. for Alaska.

The Henderson will sail at 2:00 p. m. with the first stop expected at Ketchikan, where the transport is due to arrive Sunday. The president has let it be known to members of his immediate party that the voyage will be devoted as far as possible to rest and enjoyment of life at sea, giving him a pleasant diversion from the somewhat strenuous two weeks' trip from coast to coast.

English Banks Raise Rates

LONDON, July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The Bank of England today raised its rate to four per cent from the 3 per cent level which had prevailed for a year.

The chief reason for the present increase is to bring the official rate more in line with the United States, where money for some time has run only one and one-half per cent above London.

The Ruhr situation also was evidently in the minds of the bank directors.

The increase caused little surprise, inasmuch as events recently had been moving rapidly towards such action. At the same time there is considerable opinion against raising the official minimum at a time when trade is so bad and when Great Britain's purchases of food and raw material in the United States and South America must be financed. It was therefore hoped that the authorities would not have recourse to such a step.

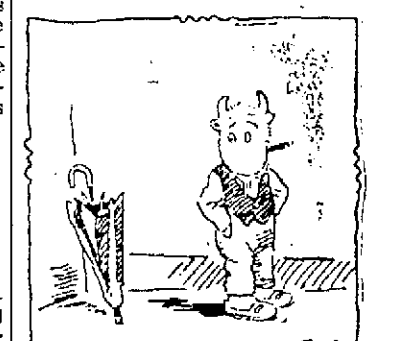

ATCHISON, KAN., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The backfire from President Harding's declaration favoring consolidation of the railroad systems of the United States began here today with an attack on the scheme by Clyde M. Reed, chairman of the Kansas Public Utilities Commission.

Reed, who is opposed to the plan, said that the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas, consolidation would place the "railroads of the country in 'the grasp of the greatest monopolistic giant ever devised.'"

The declaration made by the public utilities chairman in an address to the Atchison Rotary Club was construed as an answer to the railroad consolidation speech made by the president in Kansas City Saturday, although he did not mention Mr. Harding's name.

GREENUP, Ky., July 5.—James Warring, aged 43, single, who lived with his sister, Mrs. Margaret Phyllis at Lynn, Ky., eight miles back of this city was killed at 10:30 last night, when the trigger of a revolver he had in his hand was accidentally snapped, the bullet piercing his heart. Warring's death was instantaneous.

He had been firing the revolver into the air and was in the act of cleaning the gun to put it away when the trigger was snapped. Mrs. Phyllis today expressed the belief that her brother labored under the impression that all cartridges had been removed from the chamber of the gun when he started to clean it. The revolver was owned by Warring's nephew, Hugh Phillips of Piqua, who is visiting in the Phyllis home. Funeral services for the victim will be held Friday morning with interment in the Lynn cemetery.

Donahey Praises Veterans

DAYTON, O., July 5.—Praising the volunteer as the bulwark of American liberty and lauding the spirit that prompted America to go to the defense of our tattered Cuba in 1898, Governor Donahey declared the possibility of universal peace in an address here today at the dedication of the Spanish-American war memorial.

"It is too much to hope that war will be eliminated; that happy time can come only when the feeling of brotherly love imbues us all and when the spirit of the golden rule lies deep in the heart of every individual on this terrestrial sphere," he said. "Until that time there will arise occasions when nations must spring to arms in defense of justice and right and against oppression and might. If when that untimely for time arrives, the plain American of that day sees his duty and does it as did the men of Miles and Dewey, I have no fear for the future."

The Plain American.

Declaring the day is not given to honoring the men who have emblazoned their names in letters of gold on the pages of history but to the plain American, he said the memorial is dedicated to "the plain American, the man who denied the opportunity of fame or who, undisturbed by nature with the divine spark of genius, proceeds along life's way giving the best that is in him every day life and asks no reward, but when the hour of danger to country or home or dear ones arrives, steps forward from the crowd and says 'I am here.'"

"It is to him and through him, the plain American, that the past has been happy and prosperous and it is upon him the future must depend if our country is to endure."

Allen Chapel Rally Next Monday

Monday evening July 9th will be the acid test at Allen Chapel A. M. E. church Twelfth and Waller streets which will be the occasion of the annual rally for the mortgage debt. It will show conclusively whether the colored people were swept into the new church upon the crest of a popular wave or whether they were moved by a righteous desire to serve the community in a larger and a broader way. What was it that moved us? Was it a mere impulse that like a mushroom dies over night, or was it the result of well laid plans, thought out conditions? Are we worthy of the confidence that has been reposed in us? Can we meet the expectation that we have excited? Can we be consistent? Can we stick? Do we appreciate our place and opportunity in this community? Can we hear the voice of the dead saying "take up the quarrel with the foe." Are we worthy successors of noble fathers and mothers who were less fortunate than we? Do we hear the voice of the people calling us to minister unto them? Will we answer to our names or will we be consumed by our anger and carried away with our prejudice? God and every fair-minded man and woman has a right to expect everybody to do his duty. Last year the church was organized in the form of mock annual conference, with Lewis S. Minor, Wm. Gooden and John H. Jackson as bishops, and mighty well did the people rally to them. This year the church is divided up into an Army and Navy with John W. Evans Admiral in the navy and Mrs. Callie Banks, General in the Army.

Have we not a right to expect the same cooperation for Mrs. Banks and Mr. Evans that they gave those who led last year? Rev. John Irvin pastor of Trinity A. M. E. church, Springfield, Ohio, will be with us Monday night and help furnish inspiration for the occasion. The Senior choir will furnish music.

NORMAN W. BROWN, Minister.

Gypsies Steal Money From Long Run Grocer; Recovered

When three gypsy women entered his store on Long Run Wednesday morning the proprietor Thomas Breach tried to keep his eye on each member as they walked about the store handling and sampling this and that. Their movements proved faster than his eyes for they had only been gone a short time when Breach missed his bankroll of $65 he had kept in a hip pocket. He started after them and soon overtook them as the band was held up with a tire puncture. He demanded the return of his money and the first denied having it but when he told them the New Boston police were coming to search the party they returned the money.

Later the gypsies were halted by the New Boston police and taken to the village mayor's office where their machines were searched. The party consisted of 31 men, women and children. They were released on payment of $6.80 costs.

Harry W. Miller, W. R. Autman, and Will Clayton spent the day in Columbus attending the State Fair.

A proposal was made at the city council meeting that the limits of the city be extended to take in part of Clay township on a line with Kennedy's Lane. A petition was presented to pave Eleventh street between Ohio and Clay streets.

Miss Alice Blake and Miss Mitta Edwards went down to Turkey Creek on their wheels and attempted to cross the creek, which they thought was shallow. They struck a rock and were thrown into the creek.

While the young ladies were drying themselves in a field, two cows attacked them. Ray did not harm them.

Miss Iva Durendek and Ray Durendek entertained with a grand party at their home on Ninth street.

Counterfeit Half Dollars Passed

(Special to The Times.)

GREENUP, Ky., July 5.—Two men who gave the names of Hays Kline of Kirtz Hill, near Ironton, and E. L. Kirk of Kermitt, W. Va., were arrested by Sheriff Callahan when they passed several counterfeit half dollars at local soft drink stands yesterday afternoon. They claim that they received the spurious coins in change and had no idea where they secured them. After investigating their story for almost two hours, both men were released by the sheriff, he being convinced that neither had had any idea where the spurious coins came from.

They are a good imitation of Uncle Sam's half dollar and two of them have been sent to officials in Washington, who will start an immediate investigation in the hopes of learning just where they are being counterfeited.

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to "Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio."

Dear Miss Wise—I have never come to you for advice before, and I want you to try and tell me the right thing to do.

I am 17 years old and have gone with a boy for a few months. He tells me he loves me, but I don't know whether to believe him because he drinks a great deal and he promised to quit, but he never. So will you please tell me if I should go with him or quit before it goes too far.

If he really cared anything at all for you, he would respect you enough not to drink. Tell him, and make it emphatic, that if he doesn't give up that habit, you cannot have his company. Stick to that, and if he cares, he will reform in a short time.

Miss Wise—Is it the proper thing for a big fat grocery man just starting in business to call every lady who steps in his store "Slater," regardless of whether he knows her or not?

That is the joyful characteristic of many men in that business, and it is likely that he doesn't mean to be "fresh." The next time he calls you that, you might tell him your name, and he will probably, tactfully remember it and "take the hint."

Dear Dolly—A crowd of girls are planning on having a picnic in the near future and we are at a loss as to what to have. Of course we know we can have sandwiches, etc., but we feel sure you can help us plan something that is entirely different, and that would be worth eating after driving 10 or 15 miles. Thanking you in advance for your advice, we are,

Yours truly,

"A CROWD OF GIRLS."

Have you ever tried cooking supper after you get to your destination? It is so much fun, and usually everyone is more ready to eat than when there are the expected salads, sandwiches, pickles, etc., on the menu. There will probably be someone in the crowd who knows just how to build a fire for cooking. Take winners for roasting on long sticks, after which put them between buns. Bacon and eggs are good, and so are ham and eggs. Take hot coffee in the thermos bottles, or take a large pot for boiling it after you get your fire started. Tomatoes are always refreshing and you should have some kind of fruit. Also another good idea is to make plenty of hamburger patties to fry and have the usual onion and pickle to put with them in the buns. A picnic doesn't necessarily mean a variety of "eats," but have plenty of what you take, and have it appetizing and your crowd will score up the appetite.

Dear Dolly—I am keeping company with a young man whom I care very much for. I have been seeing him at least four times a week and sometimes more.

Now, Dolly, all my girl friends are getting married and I feel slighted, as my "prince charming" has never said a word about marriage to me. What do you think is the matter? He has never told me he cared for me. But Dolly, do you think he would waste his time with me if he really didn't care? We have been going together for 7 months steady, and I think it is time he was popping the question, don't you? BETTY.

Well, Betty, that depends on a lot of things. Is he perfectly able to finance the marriage proposition? Could he give you a good home and provide for you comfortably? Finances mean much in this day and age, and maybe he feels the responsibility of that more than you do. Maybe he just wants to be "pulsed" with you and later on may question you as to your attitude toward marrying him. If he is quite young, there is plenty of time for that, and in the meantime you can become better acquainted with him.

Says She Is The Happiest Woman In Detroit

"I'm the happiest woman in Detroit, and words just can't express my gratitude to Tanlac," declared Mrs. Jenny Countryman, highly esteemed resident of 1285 Plum Street, Detroit.

"For nearly 10 years my liver and kidneys bothered me so much that each time I felt an attack coming on I thought surely it would be my last one. It used to take me 15 minutes to get out of my chair, and I couldn't stoop over at all without bracing with my hands on my back. My skin was a swallow yellow, and at night my kidneys worried me so much my sleep was very broken."

"But by the time I finished my Tanlac treatment I was like a new person. My kidneys and liver never bother me a particle now, and I can stoop and bend just as easily as I could, even when a girl. My skin has a clear, healthy color and I sleep like a child all night without waking. I can tell any one how good Tanlac is."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.—Advertisement.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES — THE BAD GIANT.

So Jack took the lid off of the teapot and climbed inside. Just before he covered his head, he said farewell to Trixie, Cucumber and Hoppy. And then, in an instant he felt himself moving along. Fainter and fainter grew the goodbys of his friends as Jack traveled.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

"Come on, fellows, we've got company," called one.

After the Nosey had left them, Mister Sky Bow asked Nancy and Nick if they would like to see where the Earsles lived.

"Are they some more of the odd people who live in Rainbow Land?" asked Nancy.

"Yes!" nodded the little fairy man. "And a happier crowd you never saw, although they are not very handsome."

So they went along past several queer houses and other queer things, and by 'n' they heard a noise.

"That's that awful!" remarked Nancy.

"It's the Earsles singing themselves to sleep," said Mister Sky Bow.

"We'll have to hurry."

So they hurried as fast as they could go.

And on turning a corner they came to the place the Earsles were.

All they saw was a hundred hammocks swinging in this way and that.

"Hello!" called Mister Sky Bow loudly.

Instantly all the Earsles stopped.

swinging and singing and sat up. But they looked so funny the twins could hardly keep from laughing.

For the ears of these queer little folk were so large they stuck out on each side of their heads like sails.

"Come on, fellows, we've got company," called one, and with that every little Earsy jumped out of his hammock bed and came up to shake hands.

"Where are your ears?" asked one when everybody said how 'd' do to the visitors.

"Here under our bobbed hair," said Nancy, showing him.

"Too bad!" said the Earsy. "There are so many things you can't hear with such little ones."

"But it's better in a thunder storm," said Nick, laughing.

"And when Jack Frost is around," added Nancy.

"Oh, we don't mind them," said the little Earsles, running back to their hammocks.

How to build up your Weight

To be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

To Easily Overcome Tan, Freckles, Redness

If your skin is unduly reddened, tanned or freckled, just dab a little pure merozolized wax on the face and neck to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine, flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually and gently, there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so clear, fresh and youthful-looking you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually clear an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of merozolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is sufficient in most cases.—Advertisement.

YOU should know it because millions of housewives are using Chase-O every washday. Chase-O has changed washday from a day of drudgery and slavery to one of freedom and pleasure.

Where women used to rub for hours to get their clothes clean, they now wash and blue them in 15 minutes without rubbing or boiling 'em. Clothes are not streaked by bluing or rubbed to pieces.

Chase-O used with bar soap—powder or flakes—rolls the dirt out in clouds from your clothes. Rinsed, wrung and hung out snowy fresh and clean, they're clothes you are proud of! Blues as it washes. Makes hard water soft. Saves soap.

Leviathan Starts On First Voyage Under U. S. Flag

NEW YORK, July 5.—The record-breaking Leviathan, queen of the American Merchant Marine, sailed on her first transatlantic voyage under the stars and stripes.

Thousands massed on the waterfront to bid her voyage to the super-ship. Their cheers mingled with the sirens of harbor craft and the whirr from propellers of airplanes circling her path. Although her hull was dry, the Leviathan was literally a "wet ship." For as her great whistles boomed their warning to river traffic and the liner moved into the Hudson, the clouds cracked and a torrent rained on her decks.

The din increased as the great Shipping Board vessel swung her bow toward sea. For and aft she was dressed with international code flags. Upon her decks bands played. Around her sides circled gaily dressed river craft. Shouting her into the channel were tiny tugs with the power of Titans. Off her starboard bow steamed a toy vessel—a reproduction of Robert Fulton's Clermont, America's first steamboat.

Passes Ellis Island.

Part Ellis Island and the flotilla of inbound craft bearing new citizens to America's shore reserved for the Leviathan in a suite once reserved for the Kaiser, a man who 42 years ago had come to America as an immigrant boy and had risen to be secretary of labor. He was James J. Davis, member of the Harding cabinet.

Not the least excited man aboard the Leviathan before she sailed was Albert D. Lasker, retiring chairman of the Shipping Board, who for months had been concentrating his attention on the great ship. Accompanied by his successor, Edward P. Farley, he strode the decks, looking proudly at the liner's spotless cleanliness.

Mrs. Longworth Aboard.

Sailing on the liner was the daughter of a former President—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, wife of the Ohio congressman. Mrs. Longworth, whose father, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, had long been an exponent of a great American Merchant Marine, contented herself with saying she was "delighted" with the Leviathan.

It is believed the Leviathan will be able to set a new time mark for the run to Cherbourg, first stop abroad. Whether she would be sent out of the regular course on the initial voyage depended a great deal on weather conditions, her commander, Captain Herbert Hartley, U. S. N. R., said.

Kills Friend and Self.

LEITCHFIELD, KY., July 5.—Chester Rich, 20 years old, shot and killed Lonnie Scott, 35, and then killed himself at the home of Isaac Hunt of Annetta, Ky., a few miles from here last night.

Rich and Scott had been companions for years. They spent the day together celebrating Independence Day. Rich, who had been drinking, is believed to have gone insane, members of the Hunt family aver that was no quarrel.

Don't Rock The Boat

President Harding is a fine campaigner and can make a good impression with an extemporaneous speech. He is a danger of dealing with important subjects in speeches composed on the spot. He was well aware of the difficulties of impressing a crowd with a written speech and once or twice during his western journey, he laid aside his manuscript, forgetting it and made an extemporaneous appeal. All the back platform speeches were extemporaneous, however, with one or two exceptions though the president was very guarded in what he said and in the manner in which he made his impression his personality upon the crowds at the train.

Wherever Mr. Harding departed from manuscript and endeavored to reach his audience with a personal appeal he made a very effective impression. It was only in the big auditorium where the heat and stifling atmosphere were not conducive to enthusiasm over a ten thousand word lecture on government finance or academic subjects like the consolidation of railroads, that the audiences were more or less unresponsive.

But the writer has had so much experience in observing presidential candidates and presidents in addressing crowds that he would not hazard an opinion as to the impression made by any of them simply by gazing at them. He has seen the Ohio governor forget that when President Wilson delivered in Philadelphia his famous speech shortly after the sinking of the Lusitania in which the phrase "too proud to fight" appeared, the audience stood and cheered for nearly five minutes. If this speech were given today by a blundering politician entirely to the disadvantage of extemporaneous speaking. In fact, the interruptions of applause are said to have prevented Mr. Wilson from amplifying and from completing his thought. In any event what was at the moment considered a very effective utterance was pronounced if not understood by the press of the country.

Mrs. Harding Made Fine Impression
Mr. Harding made no secret of the fact that he was endeavoring to reach a larger audience than the people who stood immediately before him. He confessed on the occasion that in these days of telegraphic communication and instant distribution through the newspapers of presidential utterances, the larger audience reading the American newspaper was really his objective. It is only to say therefore that Mr. Harding made a good impression or a bad impression by his speeches on the western tour. It is a fact, however, that he made a good personal appeal and that he was able to win the hearts and showed their affection. Mrs. Harding as a campaigner showed an aptitude that was almost Rooseveltian. Despite her recent illness, she went right along with the president to all the auditoriums and never failed to appear on the back platform with him. Her greetings to the crowd, rapid fire conversation, the quick and collected answers to the much remarked upon by the people as were the president's own masterly demonstrations of kindness.

Of all the presidents who have been back platforming in the last generation, President Harding is unquestionably the most natural in demeanor. President Taft was well liked but he seemed somewhat out of the air of the judiciary. President Roosevelt had a way all his own and depended for his impression upon antics of speech that were wholly characteristic of his personality. President Wilson unbenet considerably whenever he went campaigning but there was always an atmosphere of dignity which inspired awe if not reverence. He seemed to be at ease in his responses to the comment of a back platform crowd but always had the feeling that Mr. Wilson was uncomfortable in what he was doing. President Harding on the other hand walks out to the back platform, says good morning as if he had been accustomed to doing it in that very place for years and as if he were visiting the community which he was visiting.

What the people thought of his speeches probably will be better reflected in the press comment of the next few weeks. His success at the polls of 1924 will not depend of course on his personal triumph but upon the concrete achievements of his administration and the confidence that will be broken for the future.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS TOMORROW

Keynotes of the 1923 chautauqua which opens tomorrow under the auspices of the Portsmouth Council of Boy Scouts are "variety and general excellence." Beginning with the Grosjean Marimba-xylophone company and Granville Jones, lecturer, the line-up of attraction includes many popular favorites in the realm of music, lectures and entertainment.

Bright and early this morning the "big top" was erected at the usual chautauqua location on the Union street school grounds. The Redpath special equipment car arrived last night and everything is in readiness for the work today.

Season tickets are still on sale for the special prices of $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children's tickets at Fremont's Drug Store, Vunder's Drug Store, the Cooper Hardware in New Boston, Brannan's Book Store, the Anderson Department Store, the Vulcan Lumber Co., the Smoke House, B. F. Stewart's Grocery, the Ohio Store, the A. Lechner and Jordan Wholesale Produce Co., the Baby Shoe Co., the Chamber of Commerce, and the Wheeling Steel Corp. plant.

The first performance tomorrow afternoon begins at 3 o'clock. The evening performance starts at 8. A cast of nine New York players will offer the comedy-drama, "Turn to the Right," often referred to as "the play that will live forever." The central figure is Joe Bascom, an exuberant youth who leaves home and sweetheart to seek prosperity in the city. He errs, but is redeemed through the salutary influence of a dear, old mother. "Slippery Mugs" and "Dynamite Gilly," two former prison pals, also have intensely interesting parts.

Another big feature of Chautauqua week will be the appearance of the noted song writer, Geoffrey O'Hara, the man who wrote the stultifying war-tunesong, "K-K-K-Katy." He sings, plays, recites, lectures, composes, jokes and tells stories. His assisting artists are Helen Jeffrey, violinist, and Marion Carley, pianist, both of whom have been secured for Chautauqua's closing day. Another big musical event will be the concert by the Zedeler Symphonic Quintet, under the direction of Nicolai Zedeler.

Joseph Baldi, accordionist, is to entertain with two programs of classical and popular numbers. He is to come on the same day with the Clemens Marionettes, who present "Jack and the Beanstalk" for the special interest of the boys and girls.

Customary play and story hours for the boys and girls will be conducted each morning and afternoon of Chautauqua's seven days. In addition, practically every attraction on the 1923 program is calculated to be of interest to the juniors. The "Junior Town" idea which is being introduced this season is one of the most popular and worth while diversions yet devised for the younger generation.

The Redpath Chautauqua 1923 program is worthy of special mention. Hon. W. L. Harding, for two terms governor of Iowa, discusses current events under the heading, "The Clock Strikes Twelve." Grandville Jones of Arkansas, appearing on the first night program, offers "The Philosophy of a Hill-Billy." Wallace Bruce, Ambassador, lecturer on general literature at Armour Institute, presents two lecture-recitals, "Jean Baptiste and His Brethren" and "The Poet-Sec of Lookerby Street." Edward Tomlinson of Atlanta discusses "The Stranger Within Our Gates." William Dallas Campbell, assisted by Nell Rife, will offer a lecture-demonstration on "Home Art." ## Claim Lives Threatened

NEW YORK, July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Declaring the lives of R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee Institute, and of negro surgeons at the United States Veterans' Hospital at Tuskegee, Alabama, had been threatened by masked mobs, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, today wired President Harding urging that he send federal troops to protect them.

"National Association for Advancement of Colored People, are representing 100,000 American citizens, asks that federal troops be sent to Tuskegee, Alabama, to protect colored doctors sent to United States Veterans' Hospital to care for negro world war veterans. Lives of these United States doctors and security of Tuskegee Institute have been threatened by masked mobs, Tuskegee Institute, an internationally known agency, making for protection against lawless defiance of government. We urge especially federal protection for R. R. Moton, successor to Booker T. Washington, whose life has been threatened."

For Ohio Waters

COLUMBUS, O., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The U. S. S. Wilmington, assigned to the Ohio naval militia the navy department, will arrive in Ohio waters this month according to information given Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson by Secretary of the Navy Douglas M. Clegg, of Toledo, ranking officer of the Ohio naval militia, has gone to Portsmouth, N. H., to bring the ship to Cleveland, it was said.

Coroner Probing Death Due To Aerial Bomb

JACKSON, O., July 5.—(Special to the Times)—Pending a coroner's inquest into the death of Charles Turner, 25, of Huntington, who died yesterday following injuries sustained during a public fireworks celebration, Sam DeLillo, who managed the fireworks display, is held in jail here.

Turner was with the athletic show with Gooding carnival showing here and was among the crowd gathered in the Court House yard to witness the fireworks display arranged by the Elks lodge. The display was put on by the Conit Fireworks Co., of

New Castle, Pa., with DeLillo in charge. The fatal accident was due to an aerial bomb. The bombs have a time fuse and are supposed to go up into the air about 300 feet. The bombs are shot out of a long iron pipe about five inches in diameter. Several of the bombs had been sent up successfully, but this one exploded in the iron tube near the base, the explosion tearing out a piece of the iron pipe which struck Turner, who was about 20 feet away. The piece of iron hit his left thigh and severed an artery, loss of blood causing death about an hour and a half later in an undertaking establishment. Turner had been carried to the undertaking establishment so that he could be placed in an ambulance, should it be necessary to take him to a hospital. Shortly after the man's death DeLillo was placed under arrest and held for investigation. The coroner's inquest was scheduled to be held late today.

Mrs. Eva Connor, 206 East Fifth street, Huntington, was notified of his death, and the body will be shipped to the home in Huntington after the inquest here.

Big Crowd Hears Fight Returns; Sun Extra Takes News To Whole City

Were the fight fans of this man's town interested in the outcome of the Dempsey-Gibbons scrap in Shelby, Mont.?

You would have thought so if you observed the crowd that filled every inch of space around the Times building yesterday afternoon to hear the return as received direct from the ring by The Morning Sun.

Within a remarkably short time after the last blow was struck the Sun had a fight extra on the streets and it gave every feature of the title bout. In a short space of time several thousand copies were sold. It gave the scrap round by round and the fans read every word of it, as much interest was shown in the scrap.

For more than three blocks on all sides of the Times office machines were parked as closely as they could get together yesterday, the owners and their friends being members of The Morning Sun's news-acquiring family.

The returns came over a special wire and there were no tedious delays, one round following the other in quick succession. Both Dempsey and Gibbons had their friends and when one or the other would take the lead there would be much cheering.

The crowd leaned towards Gibbons and pulled hard for the challenger to win, but he could not turn the trick.

The fight extra issued by The Morning Sun made the biggest kind of a hit with the boxing devotees of Portsmouth.

Selco Park Attracts Crowd Over Fourth; Camping Party Enjoyable Affair

Selco Park, recreation field of Selby Shoe Company employees, was the scene for numerous machine gun parties yesterday, there being a good sized delegation there from early morning until long after dark. Several of the parties had fireworks along and enjoyed "shooting" them during the evening.

A feature of the Fourth at the park was a camping party which initiated what will probably be a long and enjoyable series of "over-night" events at Selco Park. In the first party to spend the night camping at the park were Miss Rhonda Litteral, Miss Ida Allen, Miss Catherine Allen and Dr. Alice Lyle, the latter being the assistant medical director at the Selby plant. They went to the park Tuesday evening and slept in one of the tents which have been pitched at the park for the convenience of those who wish to remain all night. They remained at the park for supper Tuesday evening and for breakfast and lunch on the Fourth.

So much did the crowd enjoy the over-night stay that they have rented all three tents for over the weekend and are now forming a bigger party to enjoy the event. The tents are rented for 50 cents a night, or $2.50 a week, and cots may be rented for a small sum, affording an opportunity for all who wish to camp out to do so at small cost. The baseball diamond is in shape for play and the tennis courts will be ready by Saturday.

Warehouse Destroyed

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—The Mauser warehouse here was gutted today by fire, believed to have been started by a spark from a locomotive. Loss is estimated at $100,000, including quantities of oil and sugar. Two firemen had narrow escapes from death in oil explosions.

BIG CROWD ENJOYS FIREWORKS

A large crowd was attracted by the fireworks display at the armory on Third street last night by Battery B and the Combat Train. The demonstrations were in charge of Sergeants

Burt and Blair and were carried off in great style. There were sky rockets and roman candles galore and an occasional noise maker thrown in.

MAN'S EYE INJURED WHEN TORPEDO EXPLODES AS HE BOARDS STREET CAR

A torpedo placed on a street car track caused serious injury to Reuben Smith's left eye Wednesday night, the torpedo exploding as Smith boarded the street car. The heavy charge of dynamite in the torpedo caused a small piece of the steel rail to chip off, this silver of steel lodging in the flesh just beneath the eye.

Smith was treated by Dr. H. A. Schirmer who took an x-ray to determine the extent of the injury. It is not thought that the sight is seriously impaired. The injury will cause Smith to remain away from his work at the N. and W. several days.

Scores Killed

Many Succumb During Celebration
CHICAGO, July 5.—Many deaths and hundreds of injuries resulted from fireworks, explosions and other accidents, incidental to the nation's observance of Independence Day.

Most of those killed were children. Pittsburgh led in the number of these, resulting from pre-holiday celebrations causing four deaths of children.

St. Louis reported many injured, as did Chicago.

Exploding firecrackers caused injuries resulting in death of Joseph Javarone, Gloversville, N. Y. A flying piece of steel from an exploding barrel instantly killed Mike Auricht, of St. Cloud, Minn., and Orville Crumner, Danville, Illinois, was instantly killed when a gas pipe, loaded with powder exploded in his hands.

Charles Conners, Huntington, W. Va., was instantly killed at an Elks' Lodge observance at Jackson, Ohio, when a giant firecracker exploded prematurely, tearing off his left arm.

A two year old child at Jacksonsville, Illinois, died as a result of swallowing chemicals contained in fireworks. Three persons were killed in Chicago in holiday observances, one man was shot by an officer who mistook him for a criminal, another was shot during an altercation at a picnic and a third was drowned.

Joseph Korepa, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was probably fatally injured when he peered into the muzzle of a toy cannon to ascertain why a charge of powder and paper wads failed to explode. Three boys in Westville, N. J., were badly burned in an explosion of a package of powder in which they touched a match.

A similar accident occurred to three boys at Beloit, Wis. Nine of Chicago's 26 persons who received hospital attention were injured by stray bullets or buck shot. Four persons riding in automobiles sustained slight injuries from stray shots and one man riding on a suburban train was wounded in the arm.

A revolver cartridge placed on a car track, exploded when the wheels struck it and the bullet wounded a woman standing on the front porch of her home.

New York Has Three Victims

NEW YORK, July 5.—Three dead, more than a score injured and nearly half a hundred minor accidents were found to be the toll of Independence Day when the noise, and not a little smoke from the demonstration had passed away today.

The victims were Peter Zaccarelli, a boot black, accidentally killed by a bullet from a revolver in the hands of a celebrating friend, twelve year old Dominick Giordano who died of lock jaw after being wounded by a blank cartridge and Francis Gordon, a sufferer from a weak heart, dropped dead when some one shot off a giant cracker behind him.

Four Drownings

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Four drownings and fourteen injuries from explosive fire works, made up the total of Buffalo's Fourth of July casualties.

There were no deaths from fire works, most of the accidents resulting in burns or loss of fingers.

Four Killed In Michigan
DETROIT, July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Michigan's celebration of Independence Day brought death to at least four persons while numerous others received injuries ranging from burned fingers to loss of eye-sight.

Explosion of a cannon fashioned from a piece of gas pipe, caused the deaths in Owosso, of Clarence Calhoun, 17, and Roy Wortman, 16. In Pontiac, Alice Manekos, four years old, was burned so seriously when her dress caught fire from an exploding fire cracker that she died a few hours later. A bon fire started as a result of July celebration, caused the death in Detroit of Mary Walling, three years old.

Fiery Cross In Kentucky

A fiery cross was burned on the Kentucky hills above Rantersville yesterday evening about 9:30. The cross appeared to be about 20 feet high. It was placed on the highest peak of the surrounding range and burned for about 15 minutes.

Pleads For Education
WARREN.—Pleading for greater public interest in education and for increased salary for school teachers, former Governor Harry L. Davis, urged the need of maintaining the "Spirit of Americanism in the citizenship of tomorrow."

HOLD UP MAN SUCCUMBS
CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Walter McDonald, 41, Akron, shot by policeman during an attempted holdup of a gasoline station here Sunday, is dead. McDonald died last night from internal hemorrhages brought on when he plunged from a window of a hospital in a futile attempt to escape.

Bonzo's Son On Visit

Joe Bonzo, of the local police force, was very much surprised last night when he was called to the telephone by his son, Louis Bonzo, who has been in the navy for some time, and came home from the Great Lakes Training Station at Chicago. Bonzo had been planning to go to Chicago to see his son when he left on his vacation.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, July 5.—Confusing price movements took place at the opening of today's stock market. United States Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker and American Can all opened fractionally higher while Union Pacific advanced 1 1/2 and Locomotive 1 1/4. Steel and Tube were heavy, Crucible dropping a point to a new low for the year. American Car also touched a new low.

Additional new minimum prices for the year were established by New Haven, Delaware and Hudson, Postum Cereal, Brown Shoe, Youngstown Steel and Tube, American Agricultural Chemical, preferred, and Corn Products, the last ranging from 1 to 8 1/2 points.

Other rails also were heavy. Canadian Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line and Pere Marquette yielding a point or more.

The quick recovery of prices in today's stock market, after an early period of weakness disclosed a temporarily overvalued condition. Three score stocks, including many railroad and industrial leaders had slumped to new records for the year before the buying support appeared to stem the tide of near selling and forced liquidation. Sales approximated 775,000 shares.

The closing was firm.

Chicago Grain And Provisions

CHICAGO, July 5.—Unexpectedly higher prices at Liverpool led to an upturn here in the wheat market today during the early dealings. Weather conditions likely to promote black rust counted also as a bullish factor. A reaction, however, soon took place as a result of profit taking sales and of other selling that appeared to be in the nature of hedge against new harvest wheat. The opening which ranged from 1 1/4 to 3/4 higher with September 1.08 1/4 to 1.04 and December 1.06 1/4 to 1.06 1/2 was followed by a set-back to about the same as Tuesday's finish.

Corn closed weak at a range varying from 1 1/4 not decline to a shade below, Sept. 75 1/2 to 75 1/4.

Oats and rye paralleled the action of wheat. After opening unchanged to 1/2 higher, Sept. 75 to 75 1/2.

75%, the corn market hardened a trifle more and then began to sag. Oats started at a shade decline to 1/2 advance September 35 1/2 to 36. Later the gains were wiped out. Provisions reflected a material advance in hog values.

Weekly Summary

NEW YORK, July 5.—Hardware Age, in its weekly summary of the hardware markets said today: "Sales during June tapered off somewhat toward the latter part of the month in the wholesale hardware markets and in the retail stores in most sections of the country. The slight slump in some of the wholesale centers is natural at this time of the year, and the falling off of retail sales is attributed to the hot weather. The average for the month, however, is reported to be almost on a par with May and in many instances substantially ahead of June, 1922."

"Jobbers' forecasts for the next six months specially gathered by Hardware Age representatives emphasize the unsatisfactory condition of the farmer, the advisability of retailers buying in small quantities, the belief that prices will not go materially lower and the necessity of maintaining rapid turnover. Collections are said to be improving and the outlook for the balance of the year is generally regarded as encouraging by both wholesalers and manufacturers."

Speculative hopes that the day after the holiday would witness a turn for the better in the securities foreign exchange and commodity markets was dispelled during the morning when the reactionary movements in all three developed increased momentum. High grade railroad shares were for sale in a manner that indicated forced liquidation Jersey Central breaking 8 points, Delaware and Hudson 4 and Canadian Pacific 2 1/4.

The steel motor equipment and issues, many of which sold 1 to 3 points below Tuesday's closing levels. Nearly two score stocks had established new low records for the year before noon, including United States Steel, Baldwin and American Locomotive, new stock, Western Union, Pacific Oil, Union Pacific and St. Paul preferred. Call money opened at 4 1/2 per cent.

Gets Cold Reception

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(By the Associated Press)—Japan's suggestion for a three power armament agreement with Great Britain and the United States as a substitute for the fire power treaty signed at the Washington conference and still awaiting ratification by France, has met with small favor in high naval circles here. According to the opinion of naval experts, it would have to involve at least a tacit offensive and defensive alliance between the three signatories, viewed as improbable of congressional approval.

Elimination of France from the subscribing powers, it is pointed out, might be accepted as giving that country an unanswerable argument for embarking upon a comprehensive naval construction program.

The American naval authorities who helped frame the fire power Washington treaty are expected to advise against any reduction of the agreement to a three power basis. At the same time, however, it is emphasized that the decision as to the national policy does not rest with the navy but with the state department.

C. P. Messner Leaps In Front Of Train; Killed

(Bulletin)
Late this afternoon Harold Hall, advance man for the Chautauqua, which opens tomorrow, identified the dead man as C. P. Messner and stated that he was in Columbus, "The Messenger," Hall said, after looking at his mutilated remains.
Hall stated that Messner was unmarried and that he was known as the five day advance man of the Redpath Chautauqua. Hall says he last saw Messner in Ironton last Sunday when they attended a conference of Chautauqua workers there.

An unidentified man, who may be C. P. Messner of Hartford City, Ind., committed suicide at 2:35 this afternoon when he leaped in front of an N. and W. freight train at Tenth and Waller streets.

He was decapitated, both arms were broken and his left leg was ground off at the hip.

The man just before ending his life, talked to A. S. Bush in front of the Phoenix hotel on Tenth street and said he was going to commit suicide. When a freight train came along the unidentified man calmly removed his coat and then jumped right into the path of the train.

Bush, who was waiting on the afternoon B. and O. train related this phase of the tragedy to Clyde Ball, a local brakeman.

Coroner Virgil Fowler, who was soon on the scene found an Elk card among the man's possessions. It bears the name of C. P. Messner and was issued by the Elk Lodge in Hartford City, Ind. Another card was found showing that the man had been identified with the Redpath Chautauqua and on it was this address, Sixth and Oak streets, Columbus, O.
According to employees at the Phoenix hotel the man had been hanging around Tenth street most of the day, evidently debating his act of self destruction.

Late Wednesday night the man, who so tragically ended his life, went to the police station and called a son of Sergeant Dan Miller, who was sitting there, aside, and talked incoherently for a time. Mr. Miller then called John Reilly into conference, and Mr. Reilly too failed to make sense out of the man's conversation.

After the man had gone away, Mr. Reilly and Mr. Miller followed him, and located him on Chillicothe street, near Fourth.

Mr. Reilly discovered the man was a Mason and an Elk and then persuaded him to unbutton himself. The stranger said he was in trouble, that he had done a man an injury he could not repair and so he had decided to kill himself. Mr. Reilly tried to talk him into a more optimistic mood and left him finally after exacting a promise that he would call at the Reilly store this morning, Reilly promising to help him out.

Later Captain Startzman hunted for the man intending to lock him up, but failed to find him. Nothing more was heard of the man until he committed suicide today. He showed Mr. Reilly his Elk and Masonic cards and they talked with the cards found on the mangled body.

Gibbons Says Jack Wore Him Down In The Clinches; Seeks Return Bout

(By Tom Gibbons, challenger for the heavyweight title champion. Copyright, 1923, by King Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

SHELBY, MONT., July 5.—My shot at the heavyweight championship went wide yesterday and I can only say I feel satisfied that I showed my friends that I can fight them regardless of size. If any one asked me my opinion of yesterday's fight I would say that I lost to a better wrestler, not a fighter. The rules under which the bout was staged permitted Dempsey to get away with everything short of actual murder, his superior size and strength telling heavily in the clinches. Back in New York I think I would have beaten Dempsey yesterday, the code prevailing there does not tolerate wrestling in the ring and I would have been free to land clean punches to the body and jaw. At that I did not miss many. I may be wrong, but I think the majority of clean punches fell to my credit. But with Dempsey rushing me constantly in the hope of smothering me in a clutch I hardly had a chance to show my best. I was recognizing at the lightness of his punches, having been led to believe that he was a real man killer. Jack Dempsey didn't hurt me at any time. He merely tired me out just as a fifteen round tussle with a grizzly bear would. That is the reason he had so much the better of me in the final round. Physical weakness from mauling with a man much my physical superior. I think I hurt him several times though, in the tenth round he seemed to have all the pep taken out of him by a left hook and I carried the fight to him till he rallied desperately in the fifteenth. It may sound like propaganda but I want to say I think I qualified yesterday for another match with Dempsey under more favorable conditions. I think other sections of the country where I was not simply thought of seriously will now recognize my claim for consideration. Had Referee Dougherty broken us as many times in the first ten rounds as he did in the last five, I fully believe that nothing could have kept me out of the championship. I am making no attack on the official in question. He is Dempsey's personal friend, true enough, and he was named by the champion as referee, as yet I think he followed his honest impulses as guided by the rules under which we fought.

Dempsey's body attack was cruel enough, but the only time I was bothered was when he landed several punches that were on the border line of being foul. I was not fazed, however, at least I didn't feel that way to me and naturally I made no claim. I was in there to beat Dempsey out of the championship and not have him lose it on a foul. I failed in my intention, but I am a happy man today. I know I am the recognized contender for the title now and that nothing can keep me out of a return match unless it might be Dempsey's hesitancy to give me another shot. Another thing is, it don't make the slightest difference to me. I won lots of friends.

Beaver Is Blanked

The Fullerton Giants shut out the last Beaver nine on the Coney Island diamond on the afternoon of the Fourth, 12 to 0. Beaver has been winning from all teams in this section but went up against a hard hitting crew in the Giants. Nickels, star box artist for the Fullerton Giants held the visitors to four hits and made a dandy showing in the clinches. VanFossan who has been twirling a mighty fine brand of ball for Beaver, was hit hard by the Giant sluggers, Howard and Pannini, landing the attack with three safeties. Howard played a bang up game at short as did Taylor at third. Next Sunday the Giants play a double header at home with Wheelersburg and the Industrial Stars. The first game will be called at 2 sharp. # JACK IN OWN STORY OF FIGHT SAYS GIBBONS IS A MARVEL

(By Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world. Copyright, 1923, by King Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

SHELBY, MONT., July 4.—Well, I'm still champion of the world, but what a fight it was. And what a marvel is Tommy Gibbons in the matter of taking punishment, in game, in cleverness, my hat is off to him. Even if Tommy did decide in the last few rounds of the fight that the better thing for him to do would be to clinch and last the distance.

It was about the toughest fight of my career. I felt at the outset that I could flatten Tommy. I failed and likewise I failed to put him on the floor. Why? That "something" I can't answer myself. Maybe the experts can. One of two things is sure, either Tommy is a wonder of wonders both in dodging and ducking and taking a pounding or I'm not hitting quite so hard these days. Two years of hellness perhaps did a little harm. But now that I've had a fight under my belt and really been warmed up, I hope I'll get a little more action. I guess I will. Since Tommy was able to travel the fifteen rounds, I suppose everybody will begin slinging challenges at me. That'll suit me fine. I've always wanted action, but I couldn't get much. They hung the "superman" thing on me and it scared off a lot of folks. It gave the crowd a little joy when Tommy scored a few with his left hand. But they didn't do much more than tickle. Tommy is quite a wall of power, I hear, but he didn't do much to me. Maybe, if he had stepped out in the last few rounds and made it a slugging bee I guess he might have shown all his stuff and so could I. Nothing gives me a greater "kick" out of life than to mix it with somebody rough and tough. Ya hope Tommy would get awful tough toward the finish, but he didn't. Just depended upon his cleverness, his speed and his ability to fall into clinches to get the distance. I pounded Georges Carpentier to a pulp in the Jersey City clinches of 1921. I thought I could do the same with Gibbons. But Tommy showed that he certainly could take it. I hit him harder and oftener in the fighting than I've ever hit any man, but Tommy kept his feet and stepped right along. I've met something close to sixty men in my ring career, some tough, some tougher, some really good, but I want to say that the best man I ever fought is the man I outpointed yesterday afternoon—Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul.

Shelby Financial Disaster May Sound The Death Knell On Exorbitant Prices

NEW YORK, July 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—The financial disaster attending the Dempsey-Gibbons championship fight yesterday at Shelby, probably has sounded the death knell of exorbitant prices for title matches, boxing circles here today were convinced.

Reaction on the part of both promoters and public from the high finance that has threatened the popularity of the fight game has been apparent for some time, but it reached a climax yesterday in the price that the Little Montana town paid for its spectacle, but in many ways, tragic spectacle.

If additional proof of this menace to the sport were needed it was supplied on the same day by the fiasco at Michigan City, where Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight contender, refused to go through with his match with Sailor Fiedman of Chicago, at the last minute when promoters failed to provide the full amount of his purse.

The cost of Shelby's bitter lesson is estimated at around $200,000. The mirage of financial success prompted promoters to guarantee Dempsey a purse of $310,000 but the receipts probably will not amount to half that sum. Because of the gamble Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, took on his last $100,000 in order to avert an eleventh hour collapse of the match, Dempsey will not get his full amount but even so he already has received, by the payment of $210,000 more than he was paid for any other match except that with Georges Carpentier, when his share was $300,000.

While no definite figures were revealed, the Polo Grounds Athletic Club was understood to have lost heavily on two title bouts, the match between Johnny Kilbane and Eugene Criqui for the featherweight crown, and two weeks later the contest between Jimmy Wilde and Fanchito Villa for the fly-weight championship. The deficit on both was said to run close to $100,000.

The result of failure in each case was largely the fact that big purses were guaranteed the champions, Wilde and Kilbane, both of whom were decisively beaten, plus the fact that admission charges proved too high to suit the average fight fan. Both contingencies have been recognized by Tom O'Rourke, Polo Grounds match-maker, who announced that fighters be signs in the future must box on a percentage basis only, and limited the top price of seats to $10 for championship matches, a cut of more than fifty percent.

Joy In Rarden; Team Walks Over Dayton Club

To the great glee of a big throng of fans, the Rarden Champs stepped out and celebrated the Nation's Birthday anniversary by grubbing off two handsome victories over Clyde Kates' speedy Hartfords of Dayton, Ohio, the village performers annexing the morning game 5 to 3 and plucking off the matinee conflict by the close score of 4 to 3.

Both engagements were snappy and well played combats, hotly contested all along the line with plenty of action and barrels of excitement which kept the big crowd on anxious seats at all times.

Lou Syrony banged a mighty triple with two pals on the sacks in the sixth round and the blow broke up a nifty pitching duel between Brennan and Watson, as it produced a trio of markers, all that was necessary to win the verdict, while Red Thomas, former Champ, on the firing line for the invaders, was unable to hold his old townsmen in the afternoon game, as the Champs got to his output with sufficient vigor in one round, the fifth, to gain the decision. Outside of this one session Thomas twirled effectively and held the opposition with a firm fist.

Babe Thompson pitched good ball and turned back the Gem City crew in most of the rounds with ease. The crack young right hander struck out ten and allowed but six hits. The hitting and fielding of Pelham at short for the visitors, and the hitting of the Syrony brothers for the Champs were features of the two combats. The score—First Game:

Gibbons Fails To Get In On The Money; Shelby Busy Figuring Out Its Losses

SHELBY, MONT., July 5.—(By the A. P.)—Its frenzy of excitement subsiding, Shelby sat down today to count its losses.

On the debit side of the ledger, the little Montana town, which had its day yesterday as the fight center of the world, must write down a deficit of approximately $100,000.

It bought the world's heavyweight championship battle to which 7,202 paid admission. There was an outlay of $210,000 for the title holder; $20,000 for promotion and $33,000 for an arena.

With the exception of salvage on the huge amphitheater, estimated to be about $25,000, approximately $201,450 in sale receipts, from which federal taxes of $22,445.50 must be deducted, according to figures made public here by Charles A. Rasmussen, Montana collector of internal revenue, the entire investment was a dead loss.

Emotionally for Shelby the fight was an outstanding success. The town wanted Gibbons to stay with the champion 15 rounds. They saw him do it.

Seventy thousand, a few minutes before the fight started, crashed through the fence surrounding the arena, and swelled the attendance at the bout to a total estimated at 25,000. But their presence did not show in the gate receipts.

The potential earnings of the champion for the fight were cut to less than $202,000. Jack Kearns, his manager, collected only $32,600 of the $100,000 guaranteed this price after the gate receipts had been turned over to him. Out of this amount he paid for two preliminary bouts at a cost of about $10,000 and for a federal tax bill of $50,000 worth of tickets. The discrepancy between the ticket sale total and the amount he received was due to the fact that Kearns sold approximately 2,500 tickets for $10 each, a crowd of several thousand, apparently adverse to paying regular prices, surged against the gate barriers and the fence surrounding the arena.

The preliminary scheduled between Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light heavyweight and Jack Burke, one of Dempsey's sparring partners, was cancelled at the last minute when funds expected to be supplied by the promoters were not available.

The fight crowd was subjected to a prolonged wait by the title bout when Michael Collins, matman, refused to permit the fight to proceed until the money to pay for the preliminaries and James Dougherty, the referee, was forthcoming.

Collins, Kearns and Major J. E. Lane, trustee of the promoters, engaged in a heated argument at the ticket office, while the spectators sweltered in the hot sun, but a personal check for $10,000 signed by Major James Johnson, treasurer of the fight, eventually was produced and the balance of the money necessary was withdrawn from the fight account, after a hurried trip to a local bank by Mayor Johnson's son.

Tom Gibbons, defeated, but winner of a moral victory, nevertheless, in the eyes of Shelby, which celebrated hilariously last night, will return to St. Paul, his home, with his wife and three small children tonight or early tomorrow. He was given a mighty ovation by the townspeople, with whom he has become immensely popular during his training here. As he left the ring, a war cap of Indian feathers was pushed on his head, and his second fought desperately to keep back shouting, congratulating fans as he was rushed to his quarters. His wife, awaiting his coming, greeted him with a kiss when he reached home. Last night he celebrated Independence Day by shooting off fire crackers for the edification of his boys and greeting scores of friends who called to congratulate him on his showing against the champion.

Gibbons offered no alibi for his defeat, but declared he desired a return match with the champion, that he had tired under the strain imposed by the wrestling, fighting during the bout, and that he was unable to rally when he sought to put over the knockout punch he desired. He was unmarked, except for a large blue welt on one thigh, which he said was caused by a low blow which inflicted severe pain.

Fans who have been bewailing the fact that the challenger probably would receive nothing for fighting the champion, were heartened today by the belief that motion picture rights in the fight, 25 percent of which are owned by Gibbons, will net a considerable sum.

The terms of the contract provided that Gibbons was to receive fifty percent of the receipts above the champion's guarantee of $50,000. Inasmuch as the gate receipts were only slightly more than $200,000, he receives nothing from the promoters.

Gibbons' trip to Montana was not entirely barren of profit. He received $5,000 from Shelby for training expenses, from $100 to $400 per day during nearly three weeks of training in admissions at his training camp, and a tour of the state immediately preceding the bout netted him $5,000.

Gibbons has no regrets over the financial end of the bout. He has met the champion, the goal toward which he has struggled for the last three years, retained his record of never having been knocked out of his feet and with the knowledge he has gained of Dempsey's style, he is confident the outcome of a return match would be different from that of yesterday.

New Orleans Is Willing To Stage Dempsey-Gibbons Bout

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—W. A. Coker, chairman of the New Orleans Young Men's Gymnasium Club, has wired Richard T. Burke, secretary of the Louisiana state boxing commission, that he is willing to stage a return match between Dempsey and Gibbons for New Orleans.

Dempsey To Visit Mother

GREAT FALLS, MONT., July 5.—Jack Dempsey, refreshed by a good night's sleep, prepared today to leave Montana for a few days' vacation with his mother in Salt Lake City, Utah, after nine weeks of training for his heavy weight match with Tommy Gibbons at Shelby, yesterday.

The title holder said he was tired of the training grind and will welcome a vacation. He expressed admiration for Gibbons' ability as a boxer and declared he wanted to give him credit for his wonderful showing.

"I hope that Gibbons was not hurt," Dempsey said. "He is a great boxer and put up a fine bout. I hope the crowd was pleased."

Dempsey today has two slightly discolored eyes and a wound under the right eye and an old cut opened up over the left, as a result of Gibbons' left hooks and right crosses.

Money Not In Sight; Tendler Refused To Fight Freedman

MICHIGAN CITY, IND., July 5.—Failure of promoters to produce the $15,000 guaranteed him caused Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight, to refuse to enter the ring for his scheduled fight with Sailor Freedman of Chicago here yesterday. Disgruntled fight fans waited impatiently in a drenching downpour while Tendler, his manager and the promoters argued.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, the promoter, in a statement said that there was but $17,000 paid in at the gate and the paying Tendler of his guarantee would have left nothing to pay others. Manager Glassman stated Fitzsimmons agreed to pay him $5,000 on June 30, and the remaining $10,000 twenty-four hours before the fight. He said he had been given only $3,600 last Saturday.

JOE DUGAN STARS AT HOT CORNER

BY PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, July 5.—(United Press)—Jumping Joe Dugan is out after the title of the best third baseman in the history of baseball.

The feat he is raising up at the Yankee Stadium these hot afternoon approximates a riot. He is snarling blistering drives with a cool, calm glow, running down bunts like a keen-eyed deer, shooting them over to first base as fast as anyone ever did before and socking the ball for a snappy 250.

The New York sport writers claim he is better than Willie Kamm, who cost the White Sox $100,000; Walter Lutzke, the $35,000 star of the Cleveland Indians; the veteran Kid Eoster, or the youthful Hanes of the Tigers.

There is no doubt that the old Athletic star is playing the best ball of his career and getting better every day. There is no doubt that he is the best fielder around the hot third corner.

His style of covering ground, re-creates visions of Bill Brudler, the old Cleveland Blue star, and Collins of the Boston Beane Eaters. He kills many drives that would be hits if they were sent down to some other third baseman of the league.

One thing that strengthens his claim to the title is the fact that McGraw has switched Frankie Frisch over to second base, instead of letting him play at his old yard.

Ed Leader came to Yale last winter a total stranger and undertook the none-too-easy task of making a championship crew. The first thing he did was to sweep out the English system that had long been in use and show them how he rowed when he went to school out at University of Washington.

They call it the "Leader system" now that his crew has defeated Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Princeton and Harvard.

The new stroke which supplanted the English technique has its main feature in the apparent rigidity of the body with the power in the legs drive and the strong arm pull. There is little movement of the body.

Some of the best Yale oarsmen who could not adapt themselves to the new style were shipped back to the second crew.

Now Eli proponents are claiming the championship of the water for their new coach, crew and system.

Six world champion fighters were topped from their lofty thrones during the first six months of 1923.

The dethroned monarch of the ring include Jimmy Wilde, Johnny Buff, Johnny Kilbane, Jack Britton, Georges Carpentier and Battling Siki.

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.

Naylor's Injury Stops Athletics' Winning Stride

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—The loss of one player very often breaks up the winning stride of a ball club. When the New York Yankees lost Schang, the club hit the chutes for over two weeks. Hoffman, second string catcher, out of the game for a long time, and also slightly injured, was unable to do himself or his team justice. Hoffman has hit his stride and the team is now back in its winning ways.

Connie Mack ascribes the recent slump of his ball club to the injury suffered by Pitcher Rollie Naylor. The injury to Naylor was the result of a stumble while fielding fly balls, resulting in a twisted knee. It came just prior to a series with Chicago, a team always easy for Naylor. Mack had intended to work Naylor twice in the Chicago series and had jockeyed his staff to bring that about. Then came the accident.

The injury to Naylor came at a time when he had eight victories out of ten starts to his credit. His inability to pitch seemed to have an effect on the entire staff, which suffered a slump after having traveled at top speed since the opening of the season.

Mack figures that on the return of Naylor his club will again be as troublesome as ever.

Eighteen Months on the Trail of Cannibals

THE MOST SAVAGE PEOPLE ON EARTH

FROM the southernmost rocky promontory off the coast of San Cristoval to the cliffs of Cape North at the northwestern extremity of Bougainville, the Solomon Islands stretch broken mountain chains in a northwesterly direction over upwards of six hundred miles of seas as dangerous as have been the natives who dwell within them.

The Solomons are still noted as being the most savage people on earth. Long ago head-hunting became an expert science among them and the skull-houses of head-hunters are examples of fine art in decorating and prowess in battle. By nature the Solomon Islanders are bloodthirsty savages—the most treacherous and cruel in existence. Having our minds filled with this picture of its people it was with some excitement that we made landfall in the Solomons and headed into Indispensable Straits on our way to Florida Island, six hundred miles from Santo, on which is situated Tulagi, the port of entry and capital of the eastern division of the archipelago. For the sake of safety we anchored over night in the lee of Rua Suli, a little island in the Straits where the Catholic missions of the Solomons have their headquarters.

We were glad of our caution in not attempting to navigate these scantily-surveyed waters when we saw, next day, among fragments of other wrecks, the timbers of the governor's yacht heaped up on the beach, and when we reached Tulagi His Excellency fairly jumped at our offer to convey him wherever he wanted to go among the islands on his administrative duties. Guided by the Governor we sailed from Tulagi in search of adventure. Sailing in Search of Adventure.

Man-o-war birds, with their great powerful wings outstretched dipped into the shores of Florida Island where they had their breeding places; pilot birds flew up and out to sea at our approach; tern hovered about pools in the sand; in the lagoons among the coral reefs we caught sight of fish of many shapes and colors. Cockatoos flaunted their beautiful feathers among the trees and bright-hued parrots, in the distance, looked like vivid blossoms swaying amid the foliage. Coves of wood-pigeons whirled upward in clouds and settled again.

"Would you like to see the sacred megapodes of Savo?" the Governor asked us.

"Would we! But what are megapodes?" we enquired.

"Wait," smiled His Excellency, enigmatically, "and I'll show you." "It's a big stuffed Demij," ventured Lathrop.

"The Solomons don't believe in those," I corrected, but I didn't try to guess. So many things are sacred to a savage that the range becomes too wide for speculation. Savo was a very little place with a very tragic history to which we, later, added its most recent page. What happened when the volcano which lifted its crater 1,700 feet above a tangle of jungle was active prior to eighty years ago we never learned, but we did know that up to fifteen years ago it was a favorite raiding place for head-hunters from northern islands, perhaps because its population had not been wholly exterminated, to enrich the skull-houses of adventurous warriors.

"Be careful," warned the Governor as we lowered a boat to go ashore at Savo. "The water is full of man-eating sharks, here and they are savage."

Perhaps the creatures anticipated their favorite dish for here and there dark fins cut the water in our direction. Natives of Savo had for generations buried their dead by taking bodies out in a canoe and dropping them into the sea just off shore so that sharks in that vicinity have developed a taste for human flesh and no one dare swim in those waters. Natives are obliged to dig holes in the sand and let the tide fill them when they want to bathe.

The Sacred Megapodes.

It did not take us long to discover the sacred megapodes—the island swarmed with them.

The beach of Savo was staked out in little plots, and here we saw the "sacred turkey" of the Solomons industriously digging its nest in the sand. The bird is smaller than a grown chicken and as tame as a barnyard fowl, since it is taboo to kill a megapode and life holds no terrors for it.

The nest-diggers took no notice of us as we leveled our cameras. Their strong claws dug into and scratched out the sand with the persistence of a steam-shovel until a hole from three to four feet deep had been dug. Then the megapodes crawled in and deposited their eggs where the heat of the sun on the sand would hatch them out. In common with other inhabitants of the Solomons the megapodes did not believe in doing any work that nature could accomplish for it, hence the incubator in preference to the "setting" system, which left the hen free to enjoy herself while her progeny were preparing to break their way through shell and sand and poke their little wondering heads out upon a world of sunshine and ease.

We photographed some of the downy youngsters as they struggled through the sand, and caught on the film children of another sort. Native boys had been crouching near by, watching Madame Megapode crawl out and close up her courages rapid propagation, limited only by the natives' fondness for the eggs—especially on the day before they are to hatch.

The women of Savo disappeared at our coming, but we had seen their full skirts of combed dry banana leaves and an occasional woven armband on their muscular arms.

incubator, when they promptly pounced upon the sand heap, dug in, until barely half their little black bodies squirmed outside the hole, and dragged out the newly-laid eggs.

The megapode's eggs proved quite as much a surprise as her activities. They were larger than the eggs of a turkey and three times the size of a hen's egg. We purchased some, a few of which hatched out as soon as they absorbed the heat of our galley, but we did not distress the natives who sold the eggs by disclosing this catastrophe because,

New Georgia Island.

Some distance to the northwest of Savo lay the large island of New Georgia, its chain of mountains rising in peaks of three thousand feet from its southern to its northern extremity, and here we anchored next.

In many of the villages in the interior of the large mountainous islands of the Solomons we were the first white men the natives had ever seen and they exhibited astonishment and some perturbation at our appearance. That they were not terrified and hostile was due to the presence of a convey of natives who had cleared away underbrush and vines from the path we took through the jungle.

Timidly the natives approached us. They felt our skin and jabbered to one another their opinion of its color. They could not understand why we had white skins while theirs were black. And they were some what blunt in declaring that they didn't like us because we didn't tell them that we couldn't endure their odor at all.

But we put up with it and with them when one of our guides told us: "Viwa is going to sell his daughter, yonder at his house." Promptly upon this news we gathered our camera equipment and prepared to make a picture of the wedding ceremony.

A Native Wedding.

When we reached Viwa's proceedings the bargaining had already commenced. Lohu, a strapping young black, decked out for the occasion in feathered headdress, heavy earrings, chains of shells and beads and armlets of ground shell, stood before Viwa pressing his claims. Before the father lay a heap of offerings: a finely woven shield from Choleseu Island; necklaces, armlets, the what-nots of savage life, at which he looked with critical appraisal, arguing that a robust young woman like Panketa was worth more.

The suitor had staked his last gift when the bargaining was interrupted by the approach of another wooer, Kagwa, a young chief, who wore the badge of chieftainship—a large filigree disk of tortoiseshell mounted on a smoothly ground plate of clam shell over his right eyebrow, and who dragged an unwilling pig by a string.

Even Panketa, the new bride-to-be, who stood near her father, looked with some appearance of interest at this new applicant for her hand, but her mother, who sat by, glanced indifferently over her shoulder at the newcomer. The sale meant little to her. She would miss Panketa's help a bit in the labors that fell to their share, but the girl was merely being sold into slavery, it mattered not who her master might be.

Viwa well understood the meaning of the pig which Kagwa was dragging along the path. With such diplomacy as he could command he protested that the offerings for Panketa were insufficient and dismissed suitor number One before Kagwa.

This satisfied everybody except, perhaps, the groom who upon being made a benediction was informed that he had now become a mission man and must live at the mission and work at gathering copra. And some submitted to this unexpected captivity although many rebelled and after the wedding took their brides back with them to their own villages.

Colorful Birds are Many.

After the departure of Panketa and her chieftain our party resumed the trail to another village on the way back to our boats. White cockatoos and beautiful red, green and orange parrots fluttered away at our approach. All the islands are filled with them and large droves of parakeets flow through the forest like animated curtains of color.

Aside from the rat we did not find any animals in the islands, but we found pigeons and doves of many varieties in numbers wherever we went. We were constantly startled, in the jungles of New Georgia, by the "hoot, hoot, hoot" of great hooded doves in the forest, commonly known as harker pigeons, which are almost as large as our domestic fowl, and numerous throughout the Solomons.

I looked up through the thick foliage and saw the gentle creatures as natives let fly an arrow and killed them.

Natives shoot these doves with bows and arrows used in a different way from any other bow and arrow. The arrows are made from strips of palm leaves taken from the middle enemy camp-fires in the jungles and hostile canoes in the bay.

The Marova Lagoon.

For ninety miles off the coast of New Georgia Marova Lagoon spreads its placid waters which mirror thousands of little green islands, some no larger than a volcanic coral or uprearing mound of rock covered with luxuriant vegetation. But the head-hunters who were, until recently, wont to raid this beautiful place were not attracted by its loveliness. We wondered if, in those days, every little isle that offered vantage ground in the lagoon was occupied, as now, by two or more native huts and many by coconut plantations.

We found the Marova Lagoon tribes like the natives of Savo, lazy and black. Most of them had pierced ear lobes and some of them wore in their ears empty condensed milk cans with the solid bottom forward by way of decoration, and there is no doubt that this is where they will wear alarm clocks when any come their way.

All the Solomon Islanders that I saw had the lobes of their ears stretched until they reached their shoulders so that ornaments of any size could be worn in them. Ornaments for this purpose are varied and large rings are the most common, and it is a usual spectacle in a native village to see some small boy striving not to wince while his grandfather pierces his ear lobes and starts him on the way to achieve manly beauty.

Over their kitchen fires we saw the Morova women uglier, if anything, than the women of neighboring islands, and quite as overworked. They were attired in a knee-length skirt of shredded bark, and combed banana leaves, and their unloveliness was emphasized by the ear and arm decorations which they wore and by their black teeth—stained by betel nuts.

They busied themselves among earthenware pots, in the making of which these natives specialize, and other cooking vessels cut from lava rock. Some interesting spears and shields which stood against the side of a tree proclaimed that these pieces of armor were never made for the purpose of hunting birds.

In former years a large tribe flourished in this part of New Georgia, and the remnant that we saw have only survived by reason of the protection of the British Government.

An Old Head Hunter.

I could not help wondering if the proximity of a head-hunting chief had anything to do with this decrease in population. On the south coast of Georgia lies the island of Rubiana, where lives an old chief who enjoyed a long life of head-hunting. He was Chief of a strong tribe of head-hunters of Rubiana, and he had a large fleet of war canoes in which he led his raids for miles around. The power of this savage chieftain has only recently been crushed by a man-o-war in the last expedition sent by the Governor to punish him and stop his murderous raids.

There is a wide distinction between cannibals and head-hunters. Cannibals have existed in certain parts of the Solomons but the islanders have not all been cannibals. Many were merely head-hunters who did not kill because they had a taste for human flesh nor because they needed food, but for spiritual reasons, as offerings to their gods or to the Devil-devil, however they reasoned it out to themselves. It was part of their belief and superstition, was the justification.

It was not until 1893 that any civilized power undertook to form a protectorate over these islands and their population comprised of thirty-headed black Melaneans, with some Papuans and a few sun-burned Polynesians, when Great Britain established a mandate over the southern islands east of Bougainville, and Germany claimed the remainder and lost them during the World War.

Before the protectorate times and for years afterwards the whaler, trader and labor-recruiter had a free hand in the Solomons with the result that the archipelago has a long record of scandalous dealings on the part of these marauders, aggravated by the outrages of labor recruiters, which resulted in a high score of retaliatory murders of whites by natives. These outrages of early white traders are still remembered with bitterness by Solomon natives who, in former times, frequently set out in their war canoes to cut off trading vessels and blackbirds, whose appearance they both feared and hated.

On the pretext of making presents to natives brutal captains of labor recruiting boats would come ashore and lure native girls to the beach by displaying trinkets, mirrors and bright calicoes. Frequently this temptation proved too great and girls approached only to be seized by sailors, thrown into a boat and raced to the waiting ship under cover of guns. Sometimes the natives put up a fight on these occasions, when the consequence would be wholesale murder.

Natives retaliated by hoarding the marauding coats at nightfall or under subterfuge of going aboard to trade, when they would kill the whole crew.

The history of the Solomons is filled with such tales of cruel injustice and bloodthirsty revenge, but labor-recruiters of today do not justify the methods of former years and, if any advantages are ever taken, they are not such as to provoke reprisals on the part of revengeful natives.

A PERPLEXING SITUATION

WE are more or less interested and have been for many years, been studying the New York stock market. Why, we do not know, since we have never, except once, dealt in the stocks sold thereupon. We made a good profit, too, that once, but had sense enough to quit, possibly, because had we held on for less than a week longer we would have more than trebled gains.

However, pass that incident by. The present course of the market is a deep and unsolvable problem to us. Such opinion as we have got out of study and observation is that whenever times are good, prices never fail to go up. That is not the present condition at all. Times are good, indeed, we are said to be in an era of unvoiced prosperity, with the skies all bright and clear. Labor is scarce and commanding abnormal wage; no man need be without work, if he wants it. Industries are busy and flourishing.

But stocks are declining, going on the whole lower and lower. The first of the year United States Steel common, which is supposed to be the most reliable barometer of all, was selling at 103, this week it was offered at 90, with no scrambling for it. Wednesday it was a bare 1-8th higher, with few takers. Government bonds are another good index, you can tell by the number offering and the prices ruling, whether the times are getting better, or worse. In 1922 the bonds sold for the first five months to a total of $740,000,000; for the first five months of this year the total was short of one-half that sum, $362,000,000. Why?

For the difference in the sale of bonds we may find a partial explanation in the fact that they are now largely in the hands of large holders who do not have to sell, while originally they were owned by the many who had to sell. As to steel common and securities, so called, generally, the situation is entirely incomprehensible to us. We have an individual impression, however, that the key lies in the fact that we have a money prosperity. People are buying freely, spending all they make, aye more in the aggregate. The situation is out of balance. The towns are in a delirium of extravagance, the country is in the slough of despond. Agricultural yields do not compare in price with manufactured products, they do not so much as keep in sight of the latter. It isn't a safe condition where one-half of the country seems unduly prosperous and the other half is beyond question finding its hardships increasing and multiplying.

This machine isn't running right; neither is the power for the load is properly distributed.

CITIES AND THE FUTURE

IT is the ambition of every American village to grow into a town, of every town into a city, of every city into a metropolis, of every metropolis to keep on growing until it is the largest in the world and then still to keep on growing lest it be overtaken and so size.

In a relation to the prediction that New York will some day have twenty million inhabitants, the Wall Street Journal says such a prophecy is puerile and absurd. It does not think cities are going to keep on getting larger, but after a time, and before a great while at that, they will begin to get smaller and smaller. People are living outside of New York because of the facilities of railroad transportation, others have moved out because of the advantages of transportation afforded by the automobile. There will be a genuine hegira when the aeroplane is reduced to common usage and begins to swarm about like a honey bee.

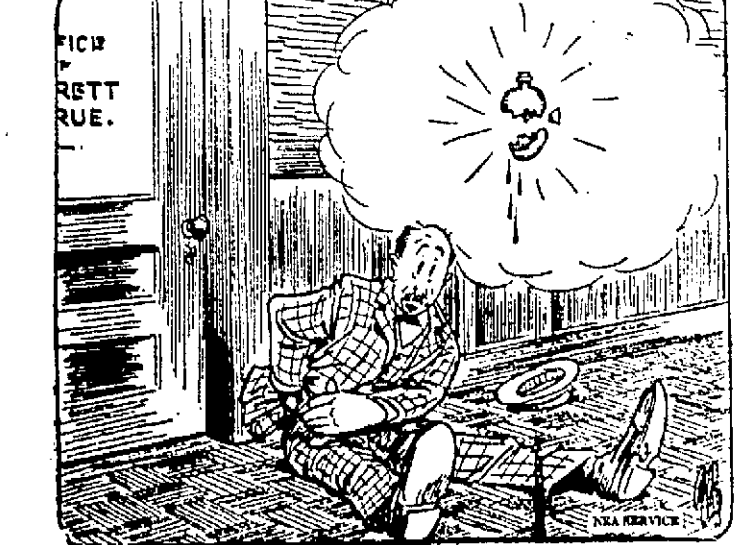

Cities have not ever continued to grow. Babylon and Nineveh have vanished from the face of the earth, Carthage no longer exists. Rome at one time had two million inhabitants. Now it has only six hundred thousand and once between had but three hundred thousand.

It is natural for human nature to seek the open, to roam abroad. This is the spirit that has driven man ever westward. He wanted elbow room and he went out to find it. People are not so interdependent as they used to be, neighborliness is disappearing from its beautiful practice. Families are no longer of size. They average scarce more than a husband and wife and one child. They are seldom to be found at home. If a chance visitor stray their way he finds they are doing what he was doing the evening before, out in their automobile.

So as cities are no longer called upon for social intercourse and as they hold no comforts that can not be readily found outside of them, they are losing their attractiveness as abiding places, and losing that must decline.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTIRE

NEW YORK, July 5.—There are many old people to meet in Gotham. The other evening I spent an interesting half hour with a "society hand walker." The "society" thing is because he does his act in an expensive cafe.

In full evening dress he makes a bow and then does a swaying dance on his hands. As an anti-climax he raises himself almost to the ceiling with spool like hand rests. It is a dizzy bit of equilibration.

It has always interested me to know what idea inspires folk to make their living in such an unusual way. This young man was born on a Minnesota farm. He mastered the art of balancing in perilous positions in a haymow.

He had no thought of capitalizing his peculiar talent. He went over seas and remained in Paris after the armistice. One night he and a group of Americans went to a cafe in the Rue St. Honoré. In a frankish spirit he walked across the dance floor on his hands.

Inspired by the applause he did a hand dance as an encore. The management of the cafe retained him as a feature. He appeared in other cafes in Paris and London and then was signed to come to New York.

There was another fellow at the cafe, bald and very serious miened, who entertains by jumping down a flight of steps on his head. He had been a circus acrobat and an injury to a leg cut short his career. He began practicing hand stands.

Out of this he developed his eccentric act. Incidentally, cafes are going in for these freakish novelties. At a supper club is a wire walker. At another is a tramp juggler.

Murray's cafe in the heart of Forty-Second Street's night life has closed its doors. It is to be converted into ground floor stores and upstairs apartments. It was opened in 1905 after $300,000 had been spent on equipment—which included the famous revolving dance floor. The proprietor says he is convinced that liquor was the motive force that made such places possible, but with the coming of prohibition it began to lose money. For years it was conducted by Pat Ryan, a picturesque Irishman, who knew all the White Light celebrities.

It was a great demonstration in New York harbor when "Judge" Harold L. Smith sailed away on his first trip abroad. The news of his death in Paris two weeks later stunned Park Row. When his ship passed the Battery, fire boats, harbor tugs and revenue cutters let go their sirens. "Judge" Smith had been a ship news reporter for thirty years, but never crossed. In his time, along the waterfront he had met every notable who has come to these shores, including Prince Henry of Prussia, King Albert of the Belgians and countless Ambassadors, Premiers, Earls and Counts, actors and actresses.

It seems to me ship news reporters stick to their jobs longer than any other reportorial types. Nearly all of the present crop have seen long service. No doubt there is more romance to this assignment than any other offered on Park Row. They travel back and forth between Quarantine and the piers—mingling hourly with the most famous people in the world. On an incoming or outgoing liner life is always pitched at highest tempo. A smuggling drama, a chat with a king or the undoing of a card sharp are all a part of the day's doings.

Doc Koko's KOLUM

Be a Booster

If you think your Road the best
"Tell 'em so!"
If you'd have it lead the rest,
Help it grow!
When there's anything to do,
Let them always count on you,
You'll feel good when it is through,
Don't you know?
If you're used to giving knocks,
Change your style;
Throw bouquets instead of rocks
For awhile.

Boost your Superintendent and District.

Always make the right decision:
Help to lift your weaker brother all the while;
With a smile!
When a stranger from afar
Comes along,
Tell him who and what you are—
Make it strong.
Never flatter, never bluff,
Tell the truth, for that's enough.
Be a booster, that the stuff.
Don't just hang on. C. E. F.

Recipe for Preserving Children

"To preserve children, take one large, grassy field, one-half dozen children, two or three small dogs, a pinch of brook, and some pebbles. Mix the children and dogs well together and put them in the field, stirring constantly. Pour the brook over the pebbles; sprinkle the field with flowers; spread over all a deep blue sky and bake in the hot sun. When brown, remove and set away to cool in a bath tub."—Michigan Health Bulletin.

The Sleeper

A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is a car in which a sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is the one on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper which carries the sleeper jumps the sleeper and wakes the sleeper in the sleeper by striking the sleeper under the sleeper sleeper on the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleep for the sleeper sleeping in the sleeper on the sleeper.—T. B. C.

Pray and Spray

Deacon Hornblower heard that the apple crop was likely to be a failure because of threatened invasion by pests. To the other apple growers assembled he said solemnly, "Let us pray."

But Ike Hardboyle took his hat and started out of the room, saying: "Let us spray."

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

LOCATED

By Berton Braley
LONG, long I sought for Arcady,
That realm of happy nescience,
Where hearts are gay, and minds are free
Of everything but joyous fancy;
All up and down the world I trailed,
Out to the sky-line—and behind it,
Pursuing Arcady, but failed
To find it.

ASKED the way of sages wise,
With eric seen their features twisted;
They could not tell me where it lies,
They doubted if the place existed;
Yet somehow I could not forget
My hopes about that land elysian.
Though Arcady had never met
My vision.

THEN—all at once the skies grew fair,
Within my veins new warmth was glowing;
I found a fragrance on the air
And felt Arcadian breezes blowing;
No longer do I need to trace
The land where milk and honey-dew are,
My Arcady is any place
That YOU are!
